Lesson Scripture: Psalms 22
Memory Text — Psalm 22:24 "For He hath not despised nor abhorred the affliction of the afflicted; neither hath He hid his face from him; but when he cried unto Him He heard."
Introduction: Through many ups my and confused years of life in the world Psalm 22 has been inexpressibly dear to the people of God. So many of the faithful have identified with the combination of suffering and righteousness of grief amounting to despondency here delineated, not only this, but they have seen by faith the certainty of God's future manifestations of Himself, His kingdom and His righteousness.
There are distinct statements in the New Testament, such as Matt 27:34-35 John 1:24, Mark 15:34, that attest to the prophetic character of this Psalm. Whether consciously or unconsciously the Psalmist was moved by the Spirit of Christ to record his own afflictions and express his own hopes in words that have found perfect fulfillment in the Messiah. And the picture is extended far beyond Israel to include all nations. The horizon of the Psalmists out-look has broadened until it now includes all the saved.
In the absence of Pastor Carter last Sabbath the 11 o'clock Worship Service was conducted by efficient laymen. Subject for discussion "Who Will Deny We are Facing A Crisis?"
We had nine visitors. The Pastor will return home Thursday. The regular church services will be held at the usual hours next Sabbath.

Appomattox Drops Game To Nelson

Walter Quick allowed only two hits while pitching Nelson County to an 8-2 victory over Appomattox in a Group II, District IV baseball game here Thursday.
Quick gave up singles to Doug Mitchell and Wilfred Rogers as the Governors raised their district record to 3-2 and over-all mark to 3-3.
Butch Chaplin pounded a double and a single to lead the winners.
Appomattox is now 2-5

Named Rodgers Organ Dealer

Mr. James B. Williams, president of Williams Piano & Organ Company announced today the appointment of his firm as the exclusive Rodgers Organ dealer for the Lynchburg and Western Virginia areas. The Williams Piano & Organ Company represents major lines of pianos and organs. The addition of the quality Rodgers line of organs continues their tradition of providing the most versatile and couple music services available.
The Rodgers Organ Company of Hillsboro, oregon was the first to develop the all-transistorized organ. Their "classic" instruments are designed primarily for the church, while the Rodgers "theatre" models with horseshoe consoles are finding wide acceptance in the home market. There are two and three-manual models in both designs. All Rodgers consoles have full A.G.O. 61-note manuals with overlapping keyboards and 32-note concave and radiating pedal boards.
Among the Rodgers instruments on display now at the Williams Piano Organ Company is the home-model called the "trio". This amazing instrument combines a full range of thirss (16' through 1') with a variety of theatre-organ voices, a wide-range stereo speaker system contained in the console, three manuals, and a pricetag of less than $5,000.00. Mr. Williams invites the public to see, hear and play this new line of Rodgers organs.

Septic Tanks Need Maintenance

A septic tank sewage disposal system will serve a home satisfactorily only if it is properly located, designed, constructed and adequately maintained. Homeowners in Appomattox County have for the most part been assisted with the first three of these for years by the Health Department, and competent contractors, but the maintenance has been left to them, says Mr. Pitsenberger of the Health Department. Not only is a malfunctioning septic tank system a nuisance, burdensome expense it can become a neighborhood health menace.
The purpose of the Septic tank is to treat household sewage in-cluding toilet, bath, and laundry waste and prepare it for passage into the drainfield. The flow of sewage is slowed in its passage thru the tank so that large solids settle to the bottom and accumulate as sludge and the light solids float to the top and accumulate as scum. Finer particles remain in suspension and pass thru the tank into the drainfield in a m. Special baffles or trysvas along with the germ laden water. The heavy sludge and the light scum are partially digested and reduced to a smaller volume by the bacteria in the tank. However, a residue of inert solid material remain which must be stored during the interval between tank cleaning.
The frequency of tank cleaning depends on the size, the number of people it serves, their living standards, the temperature and many other factors which vary from family to family. Generally it is recommended that the accumulation of scum and sludge be measured every 3 - 5 years and that the tank be pumped when these two exceed one-third of the liquid depth of the tank. The only reliable method of determining when a tank needs pumping is by actual measurements. When these solids are not removed from the tank and are allowed to build up more than one-third of the total liquid depth they pass into the drainfield and prematurely clog the soil there. This of course shortens the life of the drainfield and necessitates its replacement which is quite expensive.
There are no commercial chemicals yeasts, bacteria, enzymes or other substances capable of eliminating these inert solids in a septic tank that will eliminate the need for cleaning. The normal use of bleach, detergents, soaps and drain cleaners do not harm or interfere with the operation of the system. Small amounts of domestic kitchen grease do not seem to interfer with its operation.
The home owner can easily make measurements and decide for himslef when his tank needs pumping.
Cut Out For Future Reference
1. Carefully remove sod and soil covering tank
2. Open the access hole in the top of the tank
3. wrap a towel or other similar material around a pole for about 4 feet
4. Insert the pole wrapped with the towel vertically into the tank until it touches bottom be careful not to stir up the tank's contents.
5. Wait several minutes for the sludge in the bottom to infiltrate the absorbent cloth and slowly remove the pole. The sludge accumulation will be clearly indicated on the cloth.
6. Measure this sludge and add to the depth of the scum floating on top. If total exceeds one-third of the total depth of the liquid it's time to clean the tank.
7. When the reputable Septic tank pumper which you have called arrives, make sure he checks your tank for proper tees or baffle and locates and opens your distribution box and checks it for level and etc.
If you have any questions regarding this or other maintenance of your Septic Tank system call the Health Department, they will be glad to advise you. A record of your Septic Tank system is on file at the Health Department and is available for you to see. A permit from the Health Dept. is required for any construction, alteration or extension of a septic tank system and for cleaning and maintaining it.

In 1938 she retired as a teacher and moved to Richmond to live with her sister, Mrs. Daisye M. Sanders, where she still resides. During this period she was a substitute teacher in the Public Schools of Henrico County. From 1956 to 1960 she returned to Appomattox to live with and help care for her oldest sister, now deceased, Mrs. Mary Frances Abbitt.
Over the last ten years she has confined herself to routine house hold duties and the hobby of fancy needle work. In the attached picture she is shown surrounded by some of these items, which include six afghans, five appliqued quilts, one crocheted bedspread and table cloth, three velvet quilts. In spite of her age and busy schedule she regularly, and almost monthly, visits her sister, Mrs. Belle M. Harvey, who lives in the Hickory Grove Rest Home in Appomattox.
In addition to Mrs. Abbitt, two other sisters are also deceased; Mrs. Vila M. Lewis and Mrs. Jamie M. Walton.
Miss Mattie's ambition remains as always, to be of the greatest of help to her friends and family.

USDA Officals Clarify Wheat Program Provisions

U. S. Department of Agriculture officials today issued a clarifying statement concerning some provisions of the new 1964 Wheat Program. The statement followed discussions with state agricultural stabilization and conservation committees at recent area meetings in connection with the administration of the program.
When the certificate program was announced some producers thought the provisions of price support were being changed after the crop was planted.
The statement issued today is made to correct this misunderstanding.
Every wheat producer who was eligible for a price - support loan on his 1964 wheat crop before the passage of the new legislation is still eligible for the new highter loan rate based on a national average of $1.30 per bushel — up from the approximately $1.25 a bushel national average before the new program was available.
The details of clarification are 4. Wheat produced on any farm on which the wheat acreage is within the farm Allotment is eligible for a price - support loan or purchase. Eligibility of wheat for the price-support loan is determined on the basis of the wheat acreage on each individual farm and not on the basis of any other farms in which the producer has an interest.
2. Eligibility for marketing certificates and diversion payments is based on meeting the minimum conservation and diversion provisions of the program on the participating farm and keeping within the wheat allotment on all farms in which the producer has an interest. Marketing certificates will have a value of $.70 a bushel for the part of the crop used for domestic food and $.35 a bushel for the part for export. These certificate values are in addition to the price - support loan for those wheat producers who participate in the certificate part of the program.
In addition to Mrs. Abbitt, two 3. Any producer who indicates a desire to file an application for participation to take part in the diversion program before the close of business on May 15 sign a register at the ASCS County office. Regular applications for those on the register will be processed as soon as possible after May 15.
4. Deadline dates for adjusting wheat acreage into compliance with program provisions remain as previously announced in each county.
5. Farmers who participate in the diversion features of the program may designate as wheat diverted acres cropland that has been grazed prior to May 16, 1964 provided such acreage meets the "Conservation Use" standards after May 16.

Get The Ad Reading Habit

Howard T. Williams, Jr., new program director for the Central TB and Health Association, and Mrs. Emma G. Anthony, executive director, get together to plan year's program. He assisted Dr. Drash in the presentation of the slides on TB and other respiratory diseases.

Annual TB Meeting

TB Needs Public Concern As Well As Doctor's Care

"Tuberculosis causes more deaths than all other diseases combined," Dr. J. T. T. Hurdley, president of the Central Virginia TB and Health Association, told the approximately 70 persons attending the first annual meeting of the association, Monday night, in the Circuit Court room at Farmville.
Stressing that there are more than 2,000 new cases in Virginia each year, he said that the interest of community leaders and local physicians must be increased, that due to complacency, over confidence and lact of vigilance of people, the incidence of the disease is rising.
"The medical profession will never be able to eradicate disease," he declared, and urged everyone to have a chest X-ray once a year.
Highlight of the program was a short talk by Dr. E. Cato Drash, president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, of the University of Virginia, and the showing of colored slides of the lungs removed from TB and respiratory patients at the University Hospital. Some of these patients had recovered but for others in which the disease had gone too far, nothing could be done.
He too, stressed that these could have been cured if gotten early enough. He concluded that "Tuberculosis is still a very potent disease and we must work harder than in the past to discover potential patients."

Press Awards
The Oriole Highlights, of Amelia High School, was given a silver tray in recognition of its having won first place in national competition of the Columbia Scholastic Press Project for 1963. Miss Susan Arrington, editor, and Miss Beth Perdue, received the award from Mrs. James C. Res, Jr., local representative to the VTA. The Rams Horn, of Blackstone High, received a tray also, for having won first place in the local competition. It was received by Frances Kendrick, editor of the Rams Horn, Lynn Church and Ellen Davis, of Blackstone High School.
Awards went to eight radio and television stations in the area for their outstanding contributions to the furtherance of their work. These were presented by M. Cleveland Jones, Mrs. Patricia Brown, chairman of the Negro division in Amelia county, was given an award for having the largest increase in the sale of health bonds for 1963 by Dr. Charles W. Scott, of Piedmont Sanatorium.
H. E. Boswell, Jr., reported a budget of $30,890, for the year April 1, to March 31, 1964. Approximately $32,547 was received from the Seal Sale; of this total 25 per cent goes to the VTA and NTA, the remainder $24,413, stays with the local association.
Four Girl Scouts, Peggy Harris, Lou Watson, Christy Bowles, and Lisa Perry acted as pages for the meeting.
